Working with people in their community or within their group is a way for you to make a positive impact in your own life. By engaging with others, you can develop new skills, learn from their experiences, and contribute to the well-being of your community. This can include volunteering, participating in community events, or simply having meaningful conversations with people around you.

Development work (DOACD 100)

Principles and Practices of Youth Work (DOACD 100)

Commonwealth values in youth development (DOACD 100)

Young People and Society (DOACD 100)

1. Have you had opportunities to work with your local community or group? How did these experiences influence your perspective on community development?

2. Can you describe a project you have worked on that involved community development? What were the outcomes and what did you learn from the experience?

3. In what ways do you think community development can be integrated into school curricula? How can this help prepare young people for future roles in their community?

4. What challenges do you anticipate when working with diverse communities, and how can you address these challenges?

5. How do you define success in community development, and how do you measure the impact of your work?

6. How can you ensure that your work aligns with the Commonwealth values of democracy, human rights, and peace?

7. How can you support young people in developing leadership skills and encouraging them to take an active role in their community?

8. What role can social media play in promoting community development initiatives?

9. How can you involve young people in decision-making processes related to community development activities?

10. How can you ensure that community development initiatives are sustainable and continue beyond your involvement?
